

BARRING OF SAILORS PROBED BY DANIELS

Navy Solicitor Directed to Investigate Exclusion of Blue-jackets by Theater.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels today ordered a thorough investigation of the exclusion from Keith's Theater on Saturday evening of Frank E. Kelly and William L. Van Camp, blue-jackets from the battleship Vermont. Secretary Daniels instructed Gosham Egerton, solicitor of the Navy Department, to make a thorough investigation, and to cooperate with District Attorney Lansing in any legal steps that may be deemed necessary.

After a conference with District Attorney Lansing today, Solicitor Egerton said that a further investigation will be made before action is taken.

Secretary Daniels was requested to take action in behalf of the sailors by Col. Oden Lake, national commander of the Army and Navy Union. John McElroy, department commander of the union and publisher of the National Tribune, and Robert Jones, assistant general of organization in the District.

"We have reputable witnesses who have told us that these men were not disruptive and not disorderly," said Secretary Daniels later, in speaking about the case. "We have ordered an investigation to bring out the facts. If there has been any discrimination against the United States uniform, we want to know it, and take action accordingly."

The law fully covers such cases, and the Navy Department is determined to prosecute cases in which violations of this law are found.

The law to which Secretary Daniels referred is the act of March 1, 1911, designed to "protect the dignity and honor of the uniform of the United States."

Hereafter, no proprietor, manager, or employee of a theater or other public place of entertainment or amusement in the District of Columbia, or in any Territory, District of Alaska, or insular possession of the United States, shall make, or cause to be made, any discrimination against any person lawfully wearing the uniform of the army, navy, revenue cutter service, or marine corps of the United States, because of that uniform, and any person making, or causing to be made, such discrimination shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $500.

The manager of the theater asserts that there was no discrimination extended against the American uniform since at the time there were other sailors and soldiers in the theater. It is charged that the alleged "discrimination" were "objectionable persons."

PROSECUTION RESTS IN THE SIEGEL CASE

GENESEE, N. Y., Nov. 23.—The prosecution rested its case against Henry Siegel, one time merchant prince, shortly before 11 o'clock today.

Joseph E. Priddy, secretary of Henry Siegel & Co., of Boston, was the final witness against Siegel. He told of the "inside meetings" of the Siegel Brothers and himself, at which the prosecution claims, authorization was given for the alleged "doctored" of the company's books.

Chinaman Hales Wife Into Court

Moi Nai, a Chinese laundryman, today had his ex-wife, Levia, Xai, in the Police Court on a charge of assaulting him. He told Judge Mulowny the woman, to whom he was married last February, threw his down, choked him and took $5 away from him on the plea that she wanted to give it to the church. He exhibited a number of scars on the neck, where, he said, her fingers had drawn blood.

Levia, alleged, with smiling countenance, said she had been a dutiful wife to the Chinaman and that she did not go places he did not want her to. She stated that she had first attacked her and that she may have scratched him. Judge Mulowny counseled them to put aside their differences and live happily ever after—and in order to give them a chance to profit by his advice directed that the personal bond of the woman be taken.

What War Moves Mean

By J. W. T. MASON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(11 a. m.)—General Von Hindenberg has now reached the most critical part of his critical journey to Warsaw. At Lowicz and Skiernewice he has planned his army straddle-wise, on the two main northern and southern railway lines, which, at these two points, begin to converge on Warsaw. The straddle is fifteen miles long; the angle formed by the two railways runs forty-five miles before it comes to its apex at Warsaw.

This angle must be held by the Germans in order to command both of the railways. Hitherto Von Hindenberg has been compelled to protect only one railway line—the northern. Now, however, he must make sure of the southern as well or risk the danger of being outflanked. This risk, even with the railways in German possession, is a constant one.

Von Hindenberg, in fact, is now "living dangerously" in almost accordance with Nietzsche's urging. Beside the railway angle, there is a river angle which the Germans are entering alive with perilous possibilities. This river angle is formed by the Vistula, which flows just before reaching Warsaw, and forms a right angle with itself. Warsaw is on the north-south leg of the angle, about ten miles from the angle point. On the east-west leg, and the same distance from the angle point, is Novo Georjewsk, a first class fortress of great strength.

Into this maw, between the fortifications of Warsaw and Novo Georjewsk, Von Hindenberg must now venture. If he is outflanked, or is caught in the rear, he will be driven between the fortresses and against the Vistula with a catastrophe inevitable.

In favor of the risks Von Hindenberg is running, is the fact that no one of the Slav commanders has shown a capacity for directing a coup of this nature. Nevertheless, the fact remains that at no time during the war has there been so splendid an opportunity for a devastating stroke as Von Hindenberg is now offering the Russians.

On the other hand, no such daring has been shown by anyone in the east or west comparable to Von Hindenberg's present drive. The risks are such that probably nobody but Von Hindenberg would accept. His own army is certainly outnumbered two to one, if not more; while the Russian roads are in poor condition, making German advantage through natural mobility exceedingly difficult to develop. Von Hindenberg, however, is of the type who revels in such handlings. His open criticisms of the Kaiser's strategy at army maneuvers during peace were what caused him to be on the retired list when the war broke out. But he and the Kaiser made up their differences in the face of the national crisis, and Von Hindenberg started ahead to win the title of prince, which will be conferred on him if he preserves eastern Germany from a Russian invasion.

Naval Attack on England Or French Coast Expected

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Extreme activity of the Germans along the Belgian coast and reports indicating that warships are about to move from Antwerp are causing the greatest uneasiness here today. An invasion from the sea is now expected by the British.

The greatest mystery surrounded the movements along the Belgian coast. Military experts here express the belief that this activity in Belgium may be a part of a plan for the establishment of bases for a daring raid upon London on the forenoon of a movement to engage the allied fleet off the coast and under this cover endeavor to transport troops by sea to the French coast. The entire population of the Belgian coast towns of Zeebrugge and Knocke has been transferred to the interior of Belgium. The people were not permitted to move into Holland. Bruges is now said to be garrisoned by a slightly reduced number of soldiers, the others having been moved toward the front.

Reports have been received that six submarines are being put together at Zeebrugge. The inhabitants of St. Nicholas, a village between Antwerp and Ghent, have been ordered to leave immediately. St. Nicholas is an important railroad junction.

The people of the town were ordered to move to Antwerp, where they were told unoccupied houses originally abandoned by Belgians who fled from the city would be turned over to them. Reports from The Hague declare that fighting is now centering around Middelkerke, midway between Ostend and Newport. South of the city there has been a battle of great ferocity. The German and allied forces resorting to the use of the bayonet.

Rumors of Great Victory In East Reaching Berlin

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—The war office continued today to confine its statements regarding the fighting in the east to brief announcements that General Von Hindenberg's army was still engaged without decisive result having been reached.

Rumors of a great German victory in Russian Poland, between the Vistula and Warthe, are heard on the streets, but there is no official confirmation of the result of a conflict which admittedly will play an important part in shaping the course of the war.

After the Germans first struck at Warsaw and were driven back, the most extensive preparations were made for a second advance and this leads to confidence of success here. The Russians have apparently fallen back about eighty miles since November 8, but the absence of official claims of a decisive German victory leaves the capital hopeful but uncertain.

General Von Hindenberg and Archduke Charles Francis of Austria seem to have accepted battle along a line highly favorable strategically to pressing home a central attack against the enemy, who in suffering the same disadvantage as the Germans encountered before the Warsaw-Ingrodz line recently. The roads in the Russians' rear are in a wretched state, the Germans having accomplished a thorough job of destruction on their retirement. The Russians are jammed together on three sides and are hampered greatly in bringing up supplies.

The latest official communication issued by the German general army headquarters says: "In the eastern war theater the situation remains unchanged. In Poland we still are fighting for victory. The fighting south of Plock and at Czenstochowa continues."

NEUTRALITY BREACH BY WIRELESS DENIED

All Plants Found Owned by Amateurs and of Short Range, Declares Lansing.

So far the United States Government has found no wireless station violating American neutrality. Acting Secretary of State Lansing said today. All the wireless plants found have turned out to be owned by amateurs, and unable to communicate with any one more than 150 miles away.

Mr. Lansing declared that as far as he knew Secret Service agents have found no large wireless station in either Maine or Florida. He said that the indications so far show that campers going to the Maine woods have taken wireless outfits with them, and when they left they failed to remove much of the apparatus. Others have gone into the woods, and when they returned to the city, started stories about wireless stations.

Mr. Lansing denied that the State Department had found that a wireless station operated by the Fabrik Brothers, at Bar Harbor, Me., had been reported.

Both Mr. Lansing and Secretary of the Navy Daniels declared, however, that they have not given up their investigation.

JAPAN IS PREPARED TO AID IN EUROPE

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Japan is ready at any moment to dispatch a large army to aid the allied armies in Europe, according to Mr. Arthur Dwyer, founder of the Japan Society and an authority on Anglo-Japanese affairs. "The Japanese army is in a complete state of readiness," says Mr. Dwyer, "and if it is necessary to increase the allied forces in Europe the Japanese army is ready to supply immediately a large, admirably equipped and highly trained army."

"The Trans-Siberian railway and an ample supply of Japanese steamships make the transportation of half a million men in two months easy."

THINK FIFTY DIED IN GALE ON LAKE

Reports Indicate That Three Vessels Went Down With Their Crews.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 23.—That more than half a hundred lives were sacrificed in the terrific gale that for nearly a week has been sweeping Lake Superior was the belief of lake men here today following the receipt of advice from Superior ports to the effect that three vessels are known to have gone down and an equal number may have been lost.

Wreckage picked up on the Superior south shore today made certain the loss of the steamer Curtiss and her barges, the Martin and Peterson. The boats carried crews totaling twenty-eight men.

In addition it is now believed that the big steel steamer Sinaloa and the steamers Nipigon and Niko were lost with their entire crews.

Alleged Interview to Be Probed by Daniels

Secretary of the Navy Daniels today ordered investigation of an interview attributed to Capt. Walter N. Hill, who had charge of the marines at the taking of Vera Cruz in which he was quoted as declaring: "They will be burning and looting Vera Cruz probably before nightfall. If the American forces leave there as they are scheduled to do."

Secretary Daniels said he wished to make no comment until General Barnett, Commander of the Marine Corps, had learned whether the interview was correct, but he added, "Any man who makes such a statement is not fit for service in the United States Navy."
